I've been working as an agency nurse through Health Professionals for the past three years, and the scope of nursing variety and opportunities during that time have been excellent.

"It's a highly professional agency which strives for perfection in both theory and practice. This is backed up by extensive and well-balanced induction programmes which incorporate both mandatory training and professional development packages.

"The fact that Health Professionals is a small, privately run company, really promotes a caring, 'family' atmosphere which extends down to client and patient care alike. This personal touch is very effective and rewarding for all concerned.

"Health Professionals stands 'head and shoulders' above other nursing agencies."

Elizabeth Prentice, RGN.

"Working through Health Professionals as a temporary Theatre Nurse for the past two years has been consistent and fulfilling. As a smaller agency, they really develop individual relationships with their agency nurses and build mutual trust and respect. In essence, Health Professionals puts a very human face on an often complex and challenging people business."

Heidi Nielsen, Temporary Theatre Nurse
